

SDG Scholarship

In support of 'good work, done well', Elemental Projects is proud to offer the SDG Project Management Scholarship to project managers whose project aligns with one or more of the United Nations' 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

Empowering purpose driven projects

In 2015, the United Nations published 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to unite the world in moving toward a better, more sustainable future. Organisations across Australia have responded with creative, innovative and transformative projects aligned with the SDGs.

The SDG Project Management Scholarship seeks to develop the project management and leadership capability of the teams who deliver these projects. It also facilitates connections and networking, and raises awareness of the complex issues addressed by the project and its outcomes.

About the scholarship

The SDG Project Management Scholarship is awarded to the applicant whose project most strongly supports the Goals, as judged by the UNGC Australia Network. The selected project team receives 6 days of training for the project manager and up to four team members. During training, the team gains knowledge, skills, tools and confidence, while simultaneously collaborating to develop key documents for their project, including a Project Charter and Project Management Plan comprising the budget, schedule, stakeholder engagement plan, risk register, and more. One year on, we produce a mini-documentary video about the project for the team to use in social media, websites and other promotional activities.
