Senior Consultant and Facilitator

Madeleine's career spans more than 30 years of working in senior project management roles, delivering technical and organisational change across corporate and government sectors including financial services, transport and engineering. She has managed the organisational change and IT integration associated with several corporate mergers.

Madeleine has also undertaken management consulting roles and workshop facilitation. This includes project management maturity assessment and business process improvement for organisations in a wide range of industries including engineering, construction and financial services, within Australia and abroad.

During her career, Madeleine has demonstrated the ability to establish excellent rapport with management and staff from diverse backgrounds. As an experienced project management trainer and assessor (both AQF and AIPM), Madeleine has developed a reputation for imparting both practical and theoretical project management knowledge, as well providing individual guidance and support to her students.
